SERVITE DOMINUM IN TIMORE

February 9th marked the 139th anniversary of the death of Margaret Haughey (HAW-a-ree). She is easily among the most notable of all St. Patrick's parishioners. She arrived in the United States from Ireland as a child. The journey and transition to life in the United States were fraught with trials and tragedies. Over the next several years, Margaret would lose all of her family members and become orphaned in Baltimore. Cared for by a sympathetic fellow Irishwoman, she married at the age of 21, but her new husband had ill health. A move to the warmer climate of New Orleans was intended to aid his condition, but their arrival coincided with a yellow fever outbreak. Her husband sought treatment in Ireland. However, once he finally arrived, he succumbed to his ailment. Their small daughter, Frances, also fell victim to health hazards of their day.

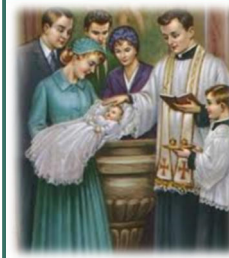

Margaret found herself widowed and alone at the age of 23. But rather than be defeated in her afflictions, she turned her life over to the service of orphans and widows. Whatever income she had, she donated to the Daughters of Charity and their efforts to care for orphans. Employed at a bakery, she gradually took over the business. It was then generously patronized by New Orleanians. She continued to use her proceeds to aid those in need. So successful was she that she was able to construct other orphanages for the city, also, St. Theresa Church. She became so beloved that she won the esteem of politicians and generals. News of her death made front-page headlines. Among her pall bearers were the governor of Louisiana and the Mayor of New Orleans. Her obituary contains a fascinating glimpse into St. Patrick's parish life from all those years ago. I've included it below.

May Margaret's life of selflessness inspires us to serve the Lord and serve others in all circumstances!

Upon arriving at St. Patrick's Church the pall bearers had great difficulty in bearing the remains through the centre aisle, owing to the dense throng of persons assembled. Not only was this aisle, but those to the right and left, the body of the church, and even the galleries thronged with people.

The funeral ceremonies were conducted by the Most Rev. Monsignor Allen, who celebrated requiem mass, with the Rev. Father Fitzgerald as deacon, and the Rev. Father Heslin as sub-deacon, Archbishop Perche reading the prayers after Mass, and the venerable Rev. Father Hubert closing the services with an eloquent sermon, choosing for his text the words of Margaret: "God has been good to me. I am His child. Let Him do to me as He may please."

FAMILY FUNDAMENTALS

"The Eucharist is the very source of Christian marriage. The Eucharistic Sacrifice, in fact, represents Christ's covenant of love with the Church, sealed with His blood on the Cross. In this sacrifice of the New and Eternal Covenant, Christian spouses encounter the source from which their own marriage covenant flows, is interiorly structured and continuously renewed."

St. John Paul II

Familiaris Consortio

We often hear the phrase "marriage is work." What does that really mean? Why is it so often said? I believe what individuals are often referring to is essentially the sacrifice component. The act of sacrifice is an intrinsic part of marriage. The self-denial and the continual dedication to the good of the other is what sustains a marriage.

It makes sense that our earthly marriages reflect the Eucharistic Sacrifice. The Eucharistic Sacrifice is His covenant with the Church that cannot be broken. It is a covenant which required an incomprehensible amount of suffering to bear the fruits of heaven. So too our marriages cannot be broken and at times can seem to be riddled with pain. In the end, the Good prevails and Christ makes all things new! The fruits of a holy marriage will far outlast the earthly union. Let us always turn to our Lord and thank Him for the example of His great love and may He sustain us and our marriages as long as we both shall live.
